

Introductory / Refresher NACWO Course

A.S.P.A requires establishment licences to specify named Individuals who are responsible for overseeing day-to-day husbandry, care and welfare of protected animals. This responsibility lies with the NACWO.

UBS
TRAINING CENTRE

To take up the role of a NACWO, the Home Office requires individuals to complete training accredited by the Institute of Animal Technology.

To meet this requirement the UBS Training Centre are offering a blended course of self-directed learning and live group sessions. The course covers areas such as legislation, assessing welfare, communication, management, AWERB, and the practicalities of the NACWO role.

By the end of this course you will:

- Be able to demonstrate a sound knowledge of the legislation and ethical issues relating to the care and use of animals in science.
- Be fully conversant with the NACWO role and able to demonstrate detailed knowledge of all individuals with responsibilities under ASPA.
- Be equipped with tools to help with managing people, dealing with difficult situations, and establishing or building on a culture of care within your facility.

Contact ubstraining@admin.cam.ac.uk for more information or book on our website:

www.ubs.admin.cam.ac.uk/training-centre/nacwo-course